

Privacy Policy

1. This “inheret.com” website (the “Site”) is owned and operated by InheRET, Inc. (“InheRET”). InheRET has created this Privacy Policy to demonstrate its commitment to user privacy and online data security, and to communicate its online information gathering, use and dissemination practices for users of this Site. We encourage users to take time to read and understand this Privacy Policy, and to contact us if you have any questions or concerns with this Privacy Policy or anything you see or experience on this Site.
2. This Privacy Policy is incorporated into and subject to the terms of the “Terms of Use” for this Site. This Privacy Policy will fully disclose our policy about the collection, maintenance, use, disclosure, and security of personally identifiable information obtained from users of the Site. By personally identifiable information, we mean a user’s name, address, e-mail address, telephone number, financial information or any other information that can be used to contact an individual, or which is identifiable of a specific individual (“Identifiable Information”).
3. InheRET shall use your Identifiable Information only in association with its operation and administration of the Site and its communications with you. InheRET shall maintain the confidentiality of your Identifiable Information in the same manner in which it protects its own confidential information of like kind, but in no event shall InheRET take less than reasonable precautions to prevent the unauthorized disclosure or use of your Identifiable Information.
4. InheRET may disclose your Identifiable Information to its employees and contractors on a need to know basis provided that such employees and contractors have confidentiality obligations to InheRET. InheRET may also disclose your Identifiable Information as required by applicable law or pursuant to a subpoena, order and/or request of a court or other governmental, legislative or regulatory body. Lastly, InheRET may modify your Identifiable Information such that it is not identifiable as yours, and InheRET may store, analyze, manipulate, aggregate, display, disclose, distribute, retain and otherwise use such unidentifiable information without restriction.
5. InheRET’s obligations under this Privacy Policy do not apply to any information or data that: (a) is not identifiable as yours; (b) is or becomes entirely in the public domain; (c) was known to InheRET prior to its access to the information or data; (d) received lawfully from a third party through no breach of any obligation of confidentiality owed to you; and/or (e) created by InheRET independently of its access to or use of your Identifiable Information.
6. You have the option to opt out of providing certain information or data, from being contacted by or receiving information from InheRET, its affiliates and/or strategic partners, and to choose how InheRET uses your information and data. You may exercise your options by sending an e-mail with your request to “info@inheret.com.”
7. You may review, update and correct your Identifiable Information by editing your User Profile. To edit your User Profile, log on to the Site using the user login and password, select “Account” and “My Info” and follow the steps.
8. The security of this Site, and of the servers and other computer equipment used to bring you this Site, is a high priority of InheRET. We maintain this Site and all associated data with technical, administrative, and physical safeguards to protect against loss, unauthorized access, destruction, misuse, modification, and improper disclosure. We follow industry-proven security procedures such as encrypted administrative communication, restricted access to underlying machines, and firewalls at network access points. No computer system or information can ever be fully protected against every possible hazard. But InheRET is committed to providing reasonable and appropriate security controls to protect this Site and its information against foreseeable hazards.

9. InheRET's servers will collect certain technical information from your computer when you access or use this Site. Below we have summarized this technical information:
- (a) Internet Protocol Addresses. Internet Protocol ("IP") addresses are identification numbers assigned to a user's computer by its Internet Service Provider each time the user logs onto the Internet, or are permanently assigned if a user has an open connection to the Internet.
 - (b) Web Logs. InheRET maintains standard web logs that record basic information about visitors to this Site. Our web logs contain the following information:
 - (i) The type of browser you are using when you access this Site, for example, Microsoft Internet Explorer, Netscape Navigator, etc.;
 - (ii) The type of operating system you use, for example, Windows 98;
 - (iii) The Internet domain from which you access this Site and/or the address of the website you linked here from; and
 - (iv) The date(s) and time(s) you visited this Site, and the pages you viewed and/or functions you used while you were at this Site.
 - (c) Use of IP Addresses and Web Log Information. InheRET does not try to identify individuals or otherwise collect Identifiable Information from IP addresses or web log information. IP addresses and web log information are used by InheRET to, among other things, administer the Site, help diagnose technical problems, to track and analyze aggregate data associated with the Site, to design this Site, identify popular features, and in similar ways. InheRET may aggregate IP addresses and/or web log information, and may store, analyze, manipulate, display, disclose, distribute, retain and otherwise use such unidentifiable information. We may also provide IP addresses and/or web log information to law enforcement agencies if someone tries to damage this Site or use it in an unauthorized or illegal way.
10. InheRET receives and stores certain types of information whenever you interact with InheRET. For example, like many websites, InheRET uses "cookies," and InheRET obtains certain types of information when your browser accesses inheret.com. A "cookie" is a piece of information that the Site sends to your browser, which then stores this information on your computer. If a cookie is used, the Site will be able to "remember" information about you and your preferences either until you exit your current browser window (if the cookie is temporary) or until you disable or delete the "cookie." The purpose of the "cookie" is to identify you when you visit the Site so InheRET can enhance and customize your online experience. Many users prefer to use "cookies" in order to help them navigate a website as seamlessly as possible. You should be aware that cookies contain no more information than you volunteer, and they are not able to "invade" your hard drive and return to the sender with personal or other information from your computer.
11. Questions, comments or complaints regarding this Privacy Policy and/or this Site should be directed to InheRET's Privacy Administrator by e-mailing such questions, comments or complaints to "info@inheret.com."
12. InheRET reserves the right to change the terms and conditions of this Privacy Policy at any time in its sole discretion. InheRET will provide notification of any change by posting the change on this Site. You are responsible for regularly reviewing this Privacy Policy and all such changes. Continued use of the Site after any such changes have been posted shall constitute your agreement to such changes.